Bio

Providence, Rhode Island's thebrotherkite have been recording and performing their unique style of rock and roll since 2001. Founding members Patrick Boutwell and Jon Downs began writing and recording original material as a duo, until they were joined by bassist Andrea Mason and guitarist Mark Howard in 2002. As a quartet, thebrotherkite released a split 7" record with Ocean State mates Vaguely Starshaped on Boston's Losing Blueprint Records.

In early 2003, the band began recording their self-titled debut CD-LP. Their fear of conventional recording studios and methods left no doubt that they would record the album in their modest home studio, and on their own terms. Upon the album's completion, thebrotherkite found their fifth and final member, percussionist Matt Rozzero. As a quintet, (and with the help of a carefully programmed Apple iPod) they were finally able to successfully recreate their layered sound in a live setting.

Their self-titled debut CD-LP is a stirring rock and roll experiment that is as catchy as it is challenging.
